J. C. GORDON, of Manawan, was in town yesterday. He is taking a trip by trail to Regina and will go via Battleford and Saskatoon taking Mrs. Gordon with him. Crops in his district have not been touched by frost and are looking splendid. Hay is very plentiful and stood higher than the teams working it it. The quality is good and the quantity sufficient for all purpoces during next winter.

POTTER'S gold mining scow is worked by a 5-horsepower engine. The length of the scow over all is 43 feet. There are two spaces between the platforms in which the scoops work at the back end of the scow. The chain from the scoops works over a block on the derrick to an iron takeup roller provided with slip knuckles to which levers are attached to operate it. The chain passes under a gate situated below the derrick which holds the chain down in the river. As soon as the scoop is full, this gate opens automatically, and the scoop rises to the dump box where the dirt is dumped. Water is raised by a chinese pump, from which there are two tubes to conduct the water over the dump boxes. There are three feeders on each of these tubes to start the derrick, and a series of small holes provide a spray of water to thoroughly wash the dirt before it passes over the grizzly. This is the second machine which Mr. Potter has built. The first was called the Easton dredge, and was bought by McGee Bros. by whom it is now being successfully worked. The scoop is the secret of the success of the machines. Mr. Potter has applied for a patent for the scoop and expects to have it registered very shortly. He has moved his scow up the river from miners flat and expects to show good returns from his work at the end of the season.

FURTHER news of the tragedy at Lac St. Anne was brought in yesterday by a trader from near the spot where the occurence took place. The Iroquois Indian is reported to have given himself up. This latest report states that it was a half breed called "Swiftrunner" who killed the young Indian, took the body to the middle of the lake and dropped it in the lake where it was afterwards found. Reliable particulars cannot well be obtained until the return of the police who are investigating the matter.

THE Edmonton dramatic club will present the "Three Hats," on Sept. 1st and 2nd. This is a three-act comedy by Hennequin, and after the excellent performances of "Betsy" and "La Cigale" by this troupe of local amateurs the Edmonton playgoing public have every assurance that their third venture will be if possible an improvant on their previous efforts. The three plays mentioned will form the repertoire of the troupe for their tour of the Northwest, which will be made in aid of the general hospital.

THE new brick building of the Saddlery Co., is now rapidly approaching completion, and is a fine addition to the business premises of the town. The basement is a large, lofty cellar with stone walls. The shop runs the whole length of the building from front to back. It has a double floor, and the walls are sided with grooved and tongued matchboarding. It is lofty and well lighted. Over the shop is a large room also sided with matchboarding, and which will be fitted up as a lodge room or a public hall. The roof is of patent mica, the first of its kind in Edmonton. At the rate at which the work is progressing it will not be many days before the store will be ready for occupation, when the Saddlery Co. will have premises much more in proportion to their business than their present limited accommodation.

A. ACTON, father of E. Acton the waterman who has been visiting his son during the past two months, returns by to-morrow's train. Mrs. McLaughlin and Mrs. Corbett, of Horse Hills, are also daughters of Mr. Acton. He was farming for twenty-five years in Ontario and afterwords in business near Ottawa, from which he has now relired. During his stay in the Edmonton district Mr. Acton has conceived a great liking for the country and he cannot speak too higly in its favor. He is so impressed with its advantages and the opportunities afforded for succesful farming, that if he were twenty years younger he says he would take up a homestead here. He has observed that the most successful farmers here are those who not only cultivate their land, but use such fertilizers as they have at hand, while the only men complaining are those whose yards are blocked with manure which should be distributed over their land, and who are careless about their cultivation. He also noticed that here we grow everything that is grown in Ontario, and get better results with the same amount of care as is bestowed in Ontario on flowers, vegetables, and grains. There are no frosts or hailstorms here, he says that do not come to Ontario and even to European countries. Certainly in the prairie countries of Manitoba and Dakota these climatic scourges are much more severe. Mr. Acton takes back with him a trunk of specimens of grains, vegetables, flowers, &c., which he intends to place in his son's store window, and he is quite confident that these specimens will open the eyes of the farmers of his district, and he expects to send a good many new settlers here in the near future.

THE Edmonton Presbytery will meet in the Presbyterian church on Tuesday, September 2nd.

A SOCIAL will be given at Mr. J. A. McDougall's house by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the Presbyterian church next Thursday evening.

DUCK shooting commences August 23rd. Prairie chicken, grouse and partridge Sept. 15th. Most of our local sportmen are busy cleaning their guns.

S. LARUE will leave on Saturday for Slave lake where he will reside for sometime, superintending the business of the firm of Larue & Picard.

JENNER BROS. have finished gold mining for this season and are now engaged with their steamer freighting and trading amongst the miners along the river.

THE South Edmonton News will change hands on September 1st. R. P. Pettipiece has sold out to J. Hamilton McDonald who will be assisted by his brother A. R. McDonald. Mr. Pettipiece will go to the Kootenay.

S. PARRISH was in town to-day. He is another Kootenay enthusiast. He opened a business there and soon after sold it out. Now he will ship goods into Rossland and other places. He says Rossland is a busy town and quite as lively as it is reported to be, but thinks there will be two or three other equally active towns next year.

SHOOTING AT BEAVER HILLS.

On Tuesday evening a man named Fisher, residing in the Beaver Hills, shot his wife with a shot gun loaded with fine shot. The quarrel occurred through jealousy; the wife accused him of being a party to the affections of another lady named Weder. The case was brought before Insp. Howard yesterday and remanded till this afternoon to get in the witness. The charge against the prisoner is a serious one, but Mrs. Fisher was only slightly injured.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

The quarterly report of the department of trade and commerce of Canada to the 30th of June, 1896, is to hand. It consists of statistics of the trade and revenue of the country, the new tariffs of New South Wales and Victoria, tariff changes in various colonies, reports of commercial agents and some general commercial information.

The unrevised statement of the revenue and expenditure on account of the consolidated fund, for the twelve months ending June 30th, is as follows: Revenue from customs, $19,681,139,23; excise, $7,869,081.98; post office, $2,935,187.64; public works, including railways, $3,586,070.19; miscellaneous $1,592,296.39 making a total of $35,659,775.33 being an increase over the same period in 1895 of $2,540,289.64. The expenditure for the twelve months ending June 30th, 1895, was $31,228,872.91 and to June 30th, 1896, $30,557,274.02.

The values of the principal dutiable imports for the year ending June 30th, 1896, was $67,250,775 on which a duty of $20,172,777.93 was paid. In the year ending June 30th, 1896, the imports were $58,549,000 and duty $17,880,622.41. The total value of the exports for the year ending June 1896, $118,140,504, of which $11,540,343 was foreign produce; for 1895 the figures were respectively $110,716,737 and $10,491,034.

The report of the commercial agents are interesting. The agent at Bristol, England, reports the sale of 33 Canadian horses on that market during May at prices averaging $105 each, and also his efforts to sell Canadian cider which were not successful owing to competition by American manufactures. From Australasia the report shows that an attempt to sell Canadian potatoes from British Columbia proved that they cannot be shipped that distance to advantage. Flour was not successfully handled because Canadian shippers' instructions compelled consignees to sell promptly and remit by return steamer, thus preventing the testing of the flour by bakers. There is no probability that Australia will for many years require to import wheat except in cases of severe drought. All the Australian colonies are importers of oats, but the demand in ordinary seasons is abundantly supplied by New Zealand and Tasmania, which ship in addition some two or three million bushels to England. Inquires are, however, being made for Canadian milling oats. The commercial report of New South Wales for 1894 and 1895 show that Canada exported to that colony $52,740 in 1894 and $61,742 in 1895, the lowest of any country except Norway and Sweden. These returns, however, are not safe guides to the exchange done between that colony and Canada, as a large portion of the imports credited to Canada originated in the United States and were simply transported through Canada, while Canadian agricultural implements and machinery, and pianos and organs, going via New York are credited to the United States. There has been a marked decline in the importations to Australia of canned salmon and dressed lumber from Canada. There is abundant scope for extension of trade in the articles now being sent. The agent urges that Canadian manufacturers combine and open sample rooms in Sydney where they would catch the eye of customers and induce trade. The closing words of the report from Australia complains of the great delay and uncertainty in filling orders. The agent says "One of the advantages held out on behalf of Canadian goods are that they can be got regularly and more quickly than from any other part of the world, but the negligence in attending to orders is rapidly destroying this hope."

FIELDING ON THE TARIFF.

In the course of his speech after his election in Shelburne and Queen's the Hon. W. S. Fielding, finance minister, referring to the tariff said:

On the trade question there was little or nothing new to be said. The liberal platform laid down by the Ottawa convention indicated the lines on which the commercial policy of the country was to be constructed. The new government desired to promote as far as possible trade with the world at large, and particularly with Great Britain and the United States. We should be less anxious than we had been to shut out from our markets the wares of England while England opens freely her ports to our products. A reciprocity treaty with the United States was desirable if it could be obtained on fair terms. He had long believed, and he believed now, that there should be better trade relations between the two countries. A few extremists on both sides of the line said and wrote disagreeable things which were not in a friendly spirit, but they would find the government of Canada willing to meet them to make arrangements on the only possible basis, that of mutual advantage.

Referring to tariff matters, Mr. Fielding repeated the assurance of Mr. Laurier that no changes would be made at the summer session of parliament soon to begin. The government hoped, however, to have their tariff policy in good shape for presentation to parliament early in the new year. He believed that such a tariff reform as was foreshadowed in the Ottawa platform would be acceptable not only to thorough-going free traders, but also to a large portion of the people who perhaps will not wish to be called free traders, but who felt that the policy of high protection was doing harm to the country. One of the evils of the protective system was that it encouraged manufacturers to rely too much on tariff assistance and thus place their business on a very unsound basis. Any revenue tariff that could be framed to meet the present circumstances of the country would probably afford incidentally a considerable measure of protection to manufacturing industries. So far as the incidental advantage might go the country would be satisfied to have manufacturers enjoy the benefit of it. But manufacturers should be advised to rely less on tariff and more on their intelligence and enterprise and on the skill and industry of their workmen. It would be the duty of the present government, while guarding to a reasonable extent the interests of manufacturers, to frame the tariff in the interests of the masses. That did not mean that manufacturing interests were to be sacrificed. Such a tariff policy was not only in the interests of the consumers, but in the interest of legitimate manufacturing as well. The best thing the government could do for the permanent success of manufacturing interests was to endeavor to frame a policy which would give a better chance of prosperity to the masses of the people engaged in developing the natural resources of the Dominion.

If this foundation of prosperity could be laid there would arise upon it strong, healthy and prosperous manufacturing industries. These were the general ideas to be kept in mind in revising the tariff. But care must be taken that while aiming at the carrying out of these views no rash or ill-considered measures should be adopted. We have to deal with present conditions of business and great care must be taken to see that the desired changes shall be brought about with the least possible disturbance. The interests involved were not those of manufacturers only, large and important though these were. The affairs of manufacturers and laborers and merchants and bankers were interwoven into a business fabric, which required very careful handling in order that there might be maintained that business confidence which was so important an element in the prosperity of the country. He had observed with some satisfaction that the efforts made in certain quarters to create an alarm among business men consequent upon the change of government had not been successful. Bankers, manufacturers and merchants, including many who had not supported the liberal cause, had done much to prevent the success of these alarmist cries. Occupying, as he did, an office which required him to give special attention to these questions he wished to publicly acknowledge the good services that these leaders of the business world had done in reassuring the public mind. He would promise them that that the whole subject of tariff reform would be taken up by the government with the utmost care, that every representation that might be made to them with respect to any industry in the country would be received with dispassionate consideration, and that no effort would be spared to give the country a measure of tariff reform which while keeping in view what the liberals believed to be sound principles, would avoid everything that could justly be called rash or disturbing legislation.

A MINING EPOCH.

Canada has waited many a long year for the time when the attention of the whole world would be directed to her shores and her immensely rich undeveloped latent resources. A change, it would seem, has taken place and the long-looked for period has at last arrived. From all points of the compass comes the news that the attention of capitalists is being directed to the mineral resources and capabilities of British Columbia more than to any other section of Canada. London advices are to the effect that the capitalists of that great financial centre are daily beseiged with importunities made by some one to place money in mining propositions in this province. A similar condition is to be encountered in Toronto, Montreal and other leading trade centres in the east, whilst the coast cities are more or less affected in a similar manner. Many of the schemes placed before the public are such as will bear the minutest scrutiny and the fullest investigation and being already producers, those placing their money therein may be classed as safe investors and can anticipate, so far as human insight goes, that in due course fair dividends may be looked for and declared from time to time. Others, whilst largely partaking of the character of being speculative, and attended with more or less uncertainty, are what may be termed developing or opening-up propositions, and may turn out to be of greater value than any thing yet discovered. The financing of these enterprises is so easy in the hands of crafty manipulators that therein lies the source of much danger to the innocent investor or capitalist. But little money, apparently is required to accomplish much work. Yet, when fully investigated it will be seen how simple it is to acquire a considerable amount of wealth—vast fortunes in some instances—on a small investment. The plan now in vogue is simply this: A claim is secured and registered. It is in a section supposed to be rich in the precious metal. The locator agrees with a broker to organize a company with a capital of say one-half to a full million of money divided into shares of $2 each. These shares are placed on the market, and are sold as treasury stock or shares, the value of which to the purchaser may be placed as low as one-half up to ten cents per share. These are what are termed treasury stock and for development purposes. For a small sum of money a considerable block of stock can be procured. It is in these shares that there is such a furore at present. It is not necessary to state that there will be disappointments as regards losses, nor will the fondest expectations of some be realized. As money cannot, however, be allowed to rest in bank vaults it may as well be utilized in developing mineral propositions, making greater wealth as it were, than in lying dormant. Caution and ordinary prudence should, however, be used by intending investors before plunging headlong into undertakings which have nothing whatever to recommend them to the public. In some instances the plan is resorted to of placing the names of prominent people upon the directorate in the hope that once it becomes known they are either directors, advisors or shareholders, confidence in the scheme will take possession of the public and the necessary funds for development work soon provided. Were this plan always carried out not much fault would be found with it. When, however, advantage is taken of those named by unscrupulous personages and innocent people are victimized it is high time the principle was condemned and the eyes of the investing world opened to the danger which besets them, as well as real estate, grain and stock gamblers, prowl about seeking whom they may be able to draw into their meshes. That they exist wherever a mining excitement prevails is well known. This being so, and the danger to the innocent being largely increased when leading men, holding positions of trust from the people, so allow their names to be used, no man either directly, himself an administrator of the laws of the land or whom the electors have chosen, should be found in any way associated with propositions which are more or less hazardous. Whether he be a minister of the crown, or a representative of the government abroad, the principle of being a director or advisor in any mining or other risky undertaking is wrong and cannot be justified upon any ground. It is to be hoped those who are in such positions as we are referring to will at once sever their connection with such transactions.—Vancouver World.

MUST SOON PAY TAXES.

Neepawa Press: An item of some $663 to be raised this year by Langford municipality to refund to the C. P. R for taxes collected from that corporation, affords food for reflection to the ratepayers of that and all other municipalities in the province and Northwest Territories. It is provided in the C. R. R. charter that their lands, received as a bonus to build the railway, shall be exempt from taxation for twenty years. The charter was granted in 1881; so that the exemption will expire five years hence. As the company has many millions of acres yet unsold, and likely to remain so for five years longer, the suggestion has been made that the government re-purchase the lands and throw them open to settlement. That would certainly be a good thing for the C. P. R., but not for the country. The government has plenty of homestead lands yet, and need not purchase any more. The C. P. R. having sold the best of its lands in organized districts at high prices should now be forced to sell the remainder for what they will bring or pay taxes on them. Another advantage in letting the C. P. R. keep their lands is the incentive it is to the company to settle the country. But the C. P. R., with keen foresight, secured large allotments of lands in remote districts which are not likely to be taxed for many years to come, because the company will not extend branch lines to those localities, and settlers do not care to go where there are no railway facilities. The government should, therefore, aid other railways to open up the country, as was done in the case of the Dauphin line, and the C. P. R. would have to sell or pay taxes. The C. P. R. and high protection have held the country in check long enough. We now want a vigorous Northwest policy; and we look to the new government to inaugurate it at once. It would be good advice to intending purchasers of land to say: Don't purchase C. P. R. land at high prices as in a few years hence they will be available at much lower figures.

TARTE'S BOLDNESS.

In the court house at Iberville, after his election by acclamation, Hon. J. Israel Tarte, minister of public works, who was enthusiastically received, said:

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen: I have just been proclaimed unanimously elected as the representative of the united counties of St. John's-Iberville. It is needless for me to say that it is an honor of which I am very proud. I do not come here before you with extravagant promises. I will fulfil the commission with which you have entrusted me to the best of my ability. What has happened since the last election? You have seen the best elements of our population unite to give power to our great compatriot, and the libellous and lying portion, which joined against him defeated. I come before you as minister of public works. I have not been in that position long. But I have there long enough to have found proofs that the administration of public affairs had been in dishonest and corrupt hands. At Knowlton I disclosed something of what I had found at Ottawa. I have spoken of the inquiry which Mr. Desjardins compelled his colleagues to endorse, for every member of the privy council is responsible for every order-in-council. In 1883 the federal government gave Charlebois the contract for the Langevin block—the name was not a very clean one—(laughter) the contract was given for a sum of $295,000. Upon entering my office I asked my deputy minister to show me all orders-in-council, which had passed recently. And I found among them the contract with Charlebois for $295,000. The government had paid $490,000 yet they allowed Charlebois to present another claim for $296,000, more: The original price was $295,000, the government paid $490,000, and finally on May 20th when the ministers were looking for money for their elections, the government putting on one side the opinion of their own architect, referred the whole matter to Messrs. Raza, Laforest and Shanly, and I say here upon my responsibility as a minister that there was a job behind that order-in-council. We are an honest government, and we will not submit claims against us to outside architects. I was not understood at Knowlton, but I want to be so to-day. The second order-in-council had reference to men who were not unknown to me. You have had knowledge of the McGreevy-Langevin Connolly scandal. You will remember that after the investigation held in 1891 parliament ordered the government to enter civil and criminal proceedings against the robbers. It took three years to bring this about and I firmly believe that if they had not been taken in Ontario they would never have been taken, but they were everlasting. Mr. Laurier asked in parliament how the case stood, Parliament had already declared that they had stolen $620,000, but the government answered that they had settled the case by paying $100,000. The government had accepted a claim of the Connollys for $40,000 and this was settled by notes for $42,000, which has not been paid. Two months in prison, $42,000 in notes yet unpaid, there are many honest people who would take the same risk. We would hesitate under such circumstances? Before the people I accuse the late ministers of public robbery, of veritable frauds. In justice to the chief engineer I must say that he opposed this order-in-council. He told me that there were not $8,000 due them, yet the then government was ready to give them $70,000.

Comments of the London press upon the release of Irish political prisoners Daly, Gallagher and Whitehead are rather sarcastic. It is intimated Mr. Balfour himself is really responsible for this act of belated mercy, and this pardoning tendency carried to legitimate conclusion may lead to the release of Mrs. Florence Maybrick. Most of the papers seem to regard the action as a weak attempt on the part of the government to placate the feelings of the Irish, ruffled already by the lords meddling with the land bill.

New York, Aug. 14.—A special to the Herald from Jacksonville, Fla., says the tug Dauntless, of Brunswick, Georgia, passed out of the Saltilla river yesterday morning with one of the largest filibustering expeditions yet dispatched to Cuba. There was more than 100 men on board, and the munitions consisted of two Gatling and two Hotchkiss guns, 1,000 shells, 1,000,000 cartridges, 5,000 rifles and other military supplies. Six large surf boats were also on board. Acting under instructions from Washington the U. S. cutter Boutwell left Jacksonville last night to try to overhaul the Dauntless. As the Dauntless is the swiftest craft in South Atlantic waters, the revenue cutter has been given a hard task.

GENERAL NEWS.

Henry White, of Port Hope, was elected grand master of the I. O. O. F. at Sarnia, Ont., and W. H. Hoyle, Cannington, representative to the sovereign grand lodge.

A printer named Howe who had been to Revelstoke, B. C., duped a number of people in Portland, Oregon, who each paid him $125 to conduct them to good prospecting grounds in the Kootenay. He was to meet them at Revelstoke, but when they arrived there he could not be found. It is said the same man victimized Seattle and Tacoma people as well, clearing about $3500 in all.

The richest gold placer mines of Alaska have been transferred to Canadian territory, and the miners are now paying tax to British authorities. The territory in question is from three to eight miles in width, and embraces the rich placer claims on the Glacier and Miller creeks, which heretofore were supposed to be in Alaskan territory. This transfer of territory is the result of re-surveying recently made.

Prince Albert Advocate: Last Tuesday's train did not arrive here until noon on Wednesday, it being delayed by the rank growth of weeds, which, blowing under the engine wheels, made the track so slippery that no hold could be taken on the rails. A pretty state of affairs, this, for a company like the C. P. R. to tolerate, when the hiring of a few men to keep the roadbed in proper shape would obviate such delays, and consequent annoyance of passengers.

The petition filed against the return of George R. Maxwell, M. P., Vancouver, alleges amongst other things that Mr. Maxwell did not sign his nomination paper and was never properly nominated; but the surprise is the following paragraph, which states there is no such person as "George R. Maxwell," and that all votes cast for him are and should be declared to be null and void. All the petitioners ask for the personal disqualification of the member.

The new minister of agriculture, the Hon. S. A. Fisher, is about the only real farmer that has ever held that office in the Dominion parliament. He is well known as a successful writer on practical farming and is also a zealous temperence man. He was born at Montreal in 1850 and has still the possibility of a long life of usefulness as a public man. Eastern farmers are naturally proud of their representative and expect much good from him.

Wyoming Republicans have named a woman as one of the presidential electors, and she is Mrs. Sarah Malloy, wife of the superintendent of the Union Pacific lines. Her husband is a Democrat. The other electors are W. F. Brittain and Benjamin Howell. Mrs. Malloy has always voted the Republican ticket. She has accepted the nomination. The following financial plank was adopted: "We favor the free coinage of gold and silver into standard money, as expressed in our former platforms, under such legislation as will guarantee that all our money shall remain on an equity."

In a paper read before the Brandon Farmers' Institute W. Kitson says: During the first three months young pigs require particular attention. The sooner you can induce them to feed for themselves the better. If you are feeding the sow heavily in the early weeks the pigs will scour, and if so change at once to a poorer quality. Give the sow and litter both a good teaspoonful of aloes and some boiled flax. If the scouring is not checked it works ruin to the pigs. Keep them very clean. Even with the pig comfort is essential to profit and I don't believe soaking in a filthy wallow is essential to the comfort of any pig.

The first meeting of the parliamentary committee appointed to enquire into the connection of the British South Africa Co. with the raid made by Dr. Jameson and his followers into the Transvaal and other matters connected with the chartered company, was held in one of the committee rooms of the house of commons on August 14th. It was really a meeting of part of the committee, as only nine out of the sixteen members were present. Among those in attendance were Sir Wm. Harcourt, the leader of the opposition party in the house, and Right Hon. Jos. Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies. Right Hon. Wm. L. Jackson, conservative member for North Leeds, was elected chairman. The proceedings of the meeting were merely formal.

A recent telegram from Buffalo, N. Y., says: The fact that money is being withdrawn from United States banks and sent to Canada for deposit is causing considerable comment on this side of the border. Speaking to a reporter on the subject, Railway Grade Commissioner James Ryan said: "Canadian dispatches state that Americans are hurrying to make deposits in Canadian banks and paying a percentage for the privilege. I know this to be a fact. One Buffalonian, to my knowledge, has sent $100,000 to Canada for deposit. He should be ashamed of himself; men of his calibre are like those unpatriotic Americans who fled to Canada in 1863 to escape draft. Men who made their money in the United States should stand together to save their country's credit and insure the stability of the banking interest."

Rumors have been afloat for some days to the effect that a prominent official whose office is in the Northwest government building was under suspension pending an investigation. A Leader reporter called there yesterday and made inquiries. The rumor was not verified. Premier Haultain said he was not aware of any suspension. Asked if an investigation was in progess, he replied that he could not truthfully answer either yes or no. There was no investigation going on now more than there had been for months. The auditor whose appointment dated from last October had been working since then auditing the work of the various departments. He was unable to say that any wrongdoing had been discovered. Enquiries made in other quarters tend to show that the rumors originated outside of Regina; and this leads to the belief that the "auditing" has become practically an investigation. But whether there is grounds at all for the rumored suspension the Leader has so far not been able to discover.—Regina Leader.

The Farmers Sun says that the reason of failure in development of the Canadian Northwest is obvious enough. Dakota, now divided into two States, had not quite as many white inhabitants in 1870 as there were in Manitoba. To-day it has about 700,000 against 175,000 in Manitoba. But what would have been the present condition of Dakota had it been cut off from the rest of the Great Prairie region by a double row of tariffs and left dependent for access to the outer world on a single pair of rails running on the way to the seaboard through a thousand miles of rock and muskeg? The liberal party cannot colonize the Canadian Northwest till they make it worth while for settlers to go there in preference to Dakota, Kansas, Texas, Australia and South Africa, and, as things are, it has no show with those places.

Dr. Nansen says the Fram drifted with ice in a westerly direction, to 84 degrees and expects the vessel will eventually arrive at Spitzbergen. He adds wherever they penetrated they found ice broken. Large patches of water were also found. 3,800 metres deep. Below the depth of 190 metres the water was appreciably warmer, probably owing to the gulf stream. Rocky scars, of which explorers have no previous knowledge prevented entrance into Olenek river for days. In consequence of the scarcity of dogs with the expedition, Dr. Nansen was compelled to turn back at a latitude of 86 degrees 15 minutes. He adds if he had been provided with a sufficient number of dogs and canoes the pole would have been reached. The land voyage was most arduious; but extremely valuable scientific results were obtained. In autumn 1895 Dr. Nansen reached the coast of Franz Josef Land and built a stone house in which he lived the whole winter. The Jackson-Harmsworth expedition arrived at Franz Josef Land the following spring.
